ELECTRICAL

New UL® Requirements Make GFCIs Safer

Why did GFCI receptacles change in 2015?

The Underwriters Laboratories Standard (UL 943) for GFCI required that manufacturers had to include a new function for all ground fault receptacles being built after June 29, 2015.

What are the new functionality requirements?

Each GFR must automatically monitor the GFCI circuit/functionality periodically every (3) hours or less. It must also automatically test within (5) seconds of power to the device.

Standard 943: June 29, 2015 changes

Automatically monitor GFCI circuit/functionality periodically

- Automatically test within (5) seconds of power to line & load terminals
- Periodically means every (3) hours or less

If the unit can no longer provide GFCI protection, it must "Deny Power" – trip with the inability to rest.

- GFCI must visually or audibly indicate that it does not go to power denial
- GFCI provides power denial or unable to reset
