

MANDARIN ORIENTAL BOSTON

THE ART COLLECTION

MANDARIN ORIENTAL, BOSTON boasts more than 35 pieces of museum quality art within the hotel's public spaces including dozens of paintings and over 10 sculptures. The collection highlights original works and provides guests with an eclectic exhibit to enjoy during their stay.

Visitors first view the works of postwar American painter and printmaker Frank Stella as they enter the hotel lobby. Stella, a Massachusetts native, brings rich colors to each side of the main entryway through his minimalist and abstract works, "The Whale As A Dish" and "Moby Dick".

A piece by England's pop art icon David Hockney, "The Deux", brilliantly balances the vibrant pieces within the main lobby. Hockney is among the most influential British artists of the twentieth century, and his lithograph adds a 'chaotic simplicity' to the busiest area of the hotel.

Guests are seemingly lifted skyward as they ascend the grand staircase with the aid of a dozen wood engravings by artist Terry Winters. Visitors to Boston may recognize Winters' style from his works exhibited at The Museum of Modern Art.

In addition, with the cooperation of the Boston Public Library, Mandarin Oriental, Boston also exhibits numerous copies of sketches and prints of Asian life and works throughout its public and guest room spaces.

We hope you enjoy our impressive collection.
