SOAK IN THE SCENERY WITH DALTILE'S KEYSTONES™

High in Oregon's Cascade Mountains, Timberline Lodge offers visitors a one-of-a-kind alpine escape. Surrounded by towering evergreens and sweeping views of Mount Hood, the historic lodge blends rustic architecture with unforgettable guest experiences. When it came time to refresh the outdoor pool and hot tub, the design team saw an opportunity to elevate the space through thoughtful surface design. Their vision centered on a material that could reflect the natural beauty of the landscape while supporting the performance demands of a mountain retreat. The answer was Keystones™ Mosaic, a versatile collection that allows designers to transform functional aquatic spaces into memorable design moments.

The pool interior features Keystones mosaics in D621 Nautical Blue, a rich tone that deepens the color of the water and draws the eye across the pool's surface. In the hot tub, Keystones mosaics in D621 Nautical Blue and D617 Arctic White flow from the steps to the waterline, creating a crisp, refreshing palette that feels both classic and inviting. Together, the colors establish a clean visual rhythm that connects the pool and spa areas while complementing the cool tones of the surrounding alpine landscape.

One of the most distinctive elements of the installation sits just beneath the water's surface. Using the flexibility of small format mosaics, the design team created custom Timberline Lodge logos embedded directly into the floors of both the pool and hot tub. The precision of the mosaic format allows intricate graphics to become part of the surface itself. As sunlight moves across the water, the logo gently emerges into view, adding a subtle yet meaningful layer of storytelling within the space.

Beyond aesthetics, the design also supports the practical needs of a high-elevation aquatic environment. Small format mosaics conform easily to curved surfaces, steps, and transitions, allowing for seamless installation throughout the pool and spa. The matte finish provides dependable traction while maintaining a refined appearance that aligns with the lodge's timeless character.
